

AUSTIN NEIGHBORHOOD SPOTLIGHT:

GEORGETOWN

Located 25 miles north of Austin, the quaint town of Georgetown is an increasingly popular Austin suburb. Once considered a small town, Georgetown has now expanded both residentially and commercially and is considered one of the fastest growing cities in the U.S.

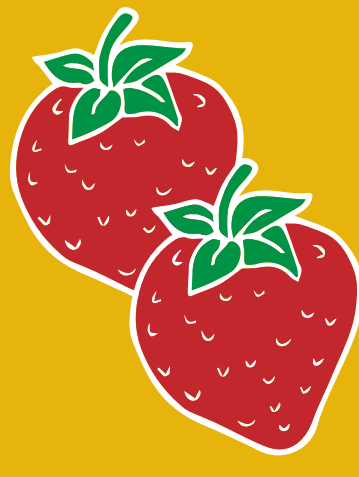

THINGS TO DO

Georgetown has many things to do for all ages, indoors or out, active or leisure. Check out a few activities that we think are worth noting below.

Go antiquing.

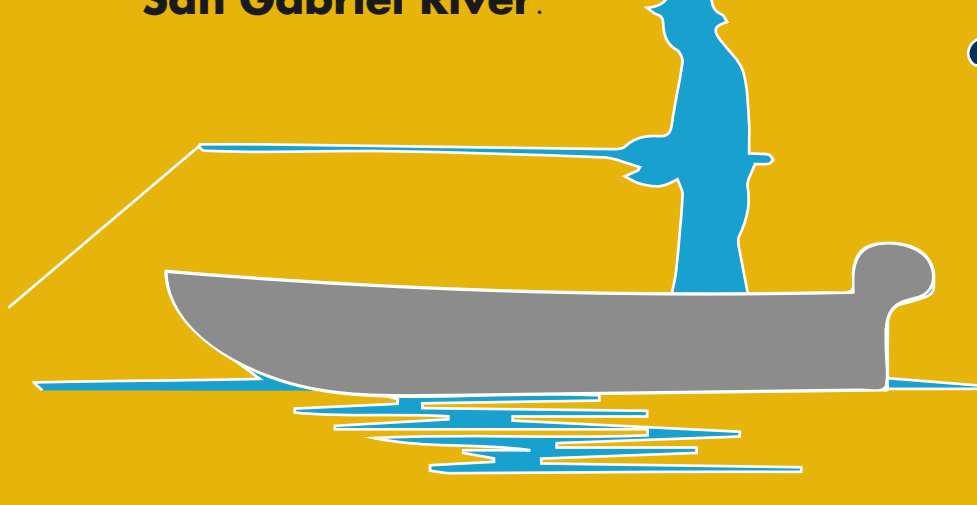

Georgetown's historic town square is known as The Most Beautiful Town Square in Texas and has lots of antique stores to peruse.

Bring the family to Sweet Eats Fruit Farm.

Not only can you pick seasonal fruit, but there is also a petting zoo, zipline, obstacle course and so much more.

Drop a line in Lake Georgetown, where you can fish and boat, or go kayaking on the San Gabriel River.

Hit the golf course.

Georgetown is known for its golf courses, and it has plenty of courses to choose from.

Go to the Lighting of the Square.

The annual event takes place on the weekend after Thanksgiving.

Visit Inner Space Cavern, one of the best preserved caves in Texas and one of the few places where prehistoric remains are found.

Fun fact: the cavern site was discovered by the Texas Highway Dept. in 1963 during the construction of I-35.

DID YOU KNOW?

Georgetown is one of the few locations in the United States where red poppies reseed themselves from year to year. Because of this, Georgetown is celebrated as the Red Poppy Capital of the Lone Star State.

They originally came to Georgetown when a young soldier sent home seeds from Flanders' Fields during WWI, and the Red Poppies began to grow wild across the area.

The town even hosts a Red Poppy Festival every April with a parade, car show, food, live music and crafts.

With new product on the market and a strong workforce, it's just a matter of time before employers choose to locate to Georgetown.
